Same story, different soil. We cannot separate our crises in values, from our crises in governance, from our crises in conservation. (AAP Image/Richard Wainwright)

This email contains information for the June 15 (New York)/June 16 (Australia) webinar course, The role of the sacred in nurturing ecological law and governance.

We work with several partners and strive to keep all of the information on our website as accurate as possible. You can also follow us on Twitter @ELGA_world.

Please note the following important events:

1. The full 2020 Webinar Series calendar is available at <https://elgaworld.org/webinar-series>. Please check regularly for updates and confirmed panelists. The courses are being submitted for Continuing Legal Education credits in the US and Canada. All courses also now include recommended readings. All 2019 events can be found at <https://elgaworld.org/webinar-series-2019>.

2. CALL FOR PAPERS - "Earth Laws Asia Pacific Conference: Earth, Sea, Fire, Spirit" will be the theme of the biennial conference organised by the Australian Earth Laws Alliance (14-16 October 2020), Brisbane, Australia. For more information, please email events@earthlaws.org.au.

If you would like to submit an EL&G-related project, conference, or publication announcement for our newsletter or if you would like to recommend a theme to be explored in the Webinar Series, please contact us at elga@elgaworld.org.

We hope to see you at the webinar! Stay safe.

- ELGA Steering Committee

The Ecological Law and Governance Association seeks to connect and amplify the people, principles, and policies of ecological law and governance.

Our mission is to provide a forum and a platform for diverse groups to work together and amplify their voices to transform our current human-centered, growth-focused legal paradigm, to an Earth-centered, 'ecological law and governance' paradigm. ELGA's vision is a just, flourishing world where state and global governance systems better protect the foundations of life.
