EPISODE 5: An introduction to the series.

First published 31st July 2025

Host: Andrew Nicholson

In this introductory episode, we give an overview of what the IMAG40 podcast series is aiming to achieve and give a clear sense of what to expect from the series ahead.

We explore how public future vison imagination could help facilitate citizen-led pathways toward better futures. Imaginative ideas for progress once powered major human wellbeing reforms. But in the face of today's urgent challenges, we seem to have lost the capacity for collective visioning of what human progress should look like.

We now have a public imagination deficit. A social imagination crisis. Without many more of us being able to imagine and concretely visualise better, climate safer, properly nature protected, socially supportive and economically fairer futures – what chance do we have of achieving them?

Tune into this episode to get some answers and help set your expectations for the rest of the series.

Spotify
https://open.spotify.com/episode/7654EmjRgWDXJ5j1pPQWdB?si=948893b7461a4beb

YouTube
https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=4EPkDaMB7Ec&list=PLj1PUiZ3u_6z5zEgQha0Cl8QvJzR2Vw0a&index=2